We Miss You
Hi there!

How are you doing? I hope you’re having a good day. I sure miss seeing you and all of the other students at school.

I know some days it must be tough not being at school (and some days, you’re really happy to be at home!) I can also imagine that you might have a lot of questions about what’s happening, or feel frustrated or confused, me too. Remote learning is new and different for all of us, but I’m confident that we will all get better and better at it, even though it doesn’t feel like what we’re used to and really like about school. I know there is a lot you have been looking forward to at school—seeing friends, teachers, and being involved in the special class projects or events or sports. And all of this can feel really disappointing. Anyway, I’m thinking about you and don’t forget to check in on your friends and family, help out around your home with acts of kindness, invent new games or stories or songs or art, and explore a topic that you’re curious about.

I hope that you and your family are safe, healthy and happy.

Looking forward to when we are all together in school again,

Principal Dan Frank
